Joined up thinking means better results

At PSigma, we understand the importance of building genuine, strong and lasting relationships with a client's advisers. In our experience, we can meet the exact needs of clients better if we're able to work closely with their advisers.

To this end, we have created a flexible, yet comprehensive approach that supports you fully in your 'trusted advisor' role. We also recognise the time and effort you have spent in developing your client relationships and see our experience and expertise as complementary to yours. Put simply, we're here to help you maintain the high levels of service and advice your clients expect.

To help ensure this, you and your client will have your own dedicated team led by one of our Investment Directors. They'll advise on everything from diversification and asset allocation strategies, to portfolio construction, management and reporting.

We keep you up to date and informed about everything we do for your clients. We can include you in all correspondence and send you copies of reports, updates and valuations either as hard or electronic copies, or you can access these through our website.

For added peace of mind, we can add further value to our own expertise by drawing on the combined resources of the Punter Southall Group with it's far-reaching and in-depth expertise.
